OVER in Jamestown the old windmill that belongs to the Jamestown Historical Society is being restored for two reasons: the historical one, of course, and also in order that the far mers around Jamestown may have a place to grind their corn. In order to raise the necessary funds, a country fair will be given on Thursday of this week, and you may be sure that will draw a crowd. There will be a baby show, automobile parade, folk dances, a pet animal show, the serving of hot Rhode Island Johnnycakes, and a prize for the art student who makes the best sketch right there on the spot; so in order to get a prize one has to go the show, Some not attend Reggie Vanderbilt's dinner the opening night, are telling a good joke on the host of Sandy Point Farms. These dinners are always entirely provided for from the farm products, and a friend of Mr. Vanderbilt's in looking over the farm with his host the morning of the dinner remarked that the campaign in food con servation made it necessary for every one of the young suckling pigs to be raised to maturity. Mr. Vanderbilt agreed and declared his intention of changing his menu, but other things distracted his attention and so when dinner was servedon came the young pigs.

Then, to add to his discomfiture, the friend, who was somewhat of a wag, made him respond to the following toast: "Hoover is looking for you, oh, you; bacon is fifty cents a pound, 'tis true. We know that you are true blue; so tell us about yon Sue, oh, you!"

MRS. ROBERT GLENDINNING and her two daughters, Ellen and Mary, are coming home from Northeast this week. What a sight will greet their eyes when they see the ruins of that wonderful barn or stable—I never can remember the difference. This brief history is essential to prepare for the tragedy that followed. The pie's first name was Apple, and it was brought into existence by the cooks of the Pennsylvania field bakery which is summering on the Parkway Camp just across from City Hall.

All Saturday morning the northwesterly zephyrs which floated over the hall carried with them the aroma of the big A. P. as it lay a-browning in the field oven. One could smell the cinnamon, the sugar—

Late last night news was circulated that the pie had been kidnapped. The police were informed and looked all over town for a pie of brownish complexion, weighing 100 pounds, one and a half feet tall, and extending east and west forty-two inches. There wasn't a trace of it. All the pies in the bakery shops looked glum and inno-cent as the cops gave them the once over. But the truth has leaked out. The kid-napping yarn was just a little strategy to put the public off the track. The pie has been crushed to death. It died in awful agony just as it was being carried from the oven. Yes, it is too true; the pan on which it rested proved to be its catafalque, for when the baker was pulling the pie out before the public, the public pushed, the baker stumbled and-trod in the pie.

While the uncertainty of war conditions has hurried many marriages, there is no marked change in social events. There have been parties, engagements and marriages from September to June, from June to September, and now we begin all over again, making the society calendar a regular merry-go-round. As the solitary condition of man was the only thing in Paradise which Jehovah pronounced "not good," a wondrously fair creature was presented to Adam. It was then that he uttered the first recorded words of man which the process of the condition of th first recorded words of man, which the effect that the lady was part of himself and belonged entirely to him. So you see the little boy who said, "The chief end of the little boy who said, "The chief end of man is to glorify God and enjoy him forever, but the chief end of woman is to get married," made a mistake, for it is all the other way, and we keep right on announcing engagements and coming matrimonial events.
